Additional Notes:

1. This information is subject to change. Students planning to attend any four-year institution should always verify the world language admission and graduation requirements for each specific university and major. You can find links to transfer webpages for additional information for colleges/universities in Washington State at: <https://northseattle.edu/programs/college-transfer/list-universities>
2. In order to satisfy the world language requirements, students must complete their credits in a single language. One year/quarter of Spanish and one year/quarter of Japanese will not meet the requirements; both years/quarters must be in the same language.
3. Many universities provide alternate ways to meet their world language requirement, which could include but is not limited to: completing education in a non-English speaking country through 8th grade, taking a proficiency exam, Advanced Placement or International Baccalaureate test scores, or other ways in which a student can demonstrate language proficiency. Consult with your school(s) of choice for more information on alternate options.
4. All of the four-year institutions listed on this sheet accept American Sign Language (ASL) as a world language.
